EASTER HAS COME AND GONE.
EASTER BUNNIES ARE STILL IN EXISTENCE AND SO, I PRESUME
ARE EASTER LILIES.

BE AWARE

Members of the genus Lilium produce a chemical, present throughout the plant that is toxic, particularly to cats and results in kidney failure and often death. It can be deadly for a cat to bite into a leaf or flower, or even lick the water from the vase that the cut flowers are in. Symptoms of toxicity include vomiting, lethargy or loss of appetite.

If you suspect this is the case, immediate medical treatment will make the difference between life and death.

HAPPY SPRING TO ALL OF MY READERS
